company, which took a commanding position in the midcontinent field under his direction, needs no introduction to Tulsa people, but is always noted for his cheerful manner, and says "You know as much about the probable trend of the market for crude as I do, but of course I am always an optimist, but absolutely know nothing of the probability as to price."

Owing to the fact that all oil men were at the John Glover funeral, there were not many to greet the easterners yesterday afternoon, but all will have at least an hour for visiting Tuesday, following which the party will go to Texas and the Gulf coast, and to the Homer fields in Louisiana.

Looks Like Tremendous Well

"Our well made a wonderful flow this afternoon, flowing 25 feet to the top of the derrick. This town is filled tonight with people, and more coming. Our new company here will be known as the Humphreys-Mexia company. Signed, John B. McMillen."

General Refining Party Huge Success

The party tendered the employees of the General Refining company Saturday night at the residence of President J. B. Ryan was a great success, there being nearly 100 guests, as it was well understood in advance that these parties are simply great for a good time and for the many of the friends of the firm were in attendance.

Oil Man Brings Charge Against Six

John C. McDowell, an oil and gas operator, with offices in the Farmers Bank building, where the postal authorities seek to have indicted by a Federal grand jury on the charge of using the mails in a scheme to defraud, yesterday entered suit before Alderman Charles J. Anderson against six New York men, whom he charges with conspiracy and larceny. The complaint was filed against Henry L. Doherty of Henry L. Doherty Co., Charles A. Fruehoff, Paul Jones, William B. S. Winans, Frank W. Fruehoff and a man named "William."

The defendants are accused of carrying on from the office of McDowell, personal papers, consisting of deeds, abstracts of titles, geological reports and diaries, all property of the plaintiff. The complaint alleges that those named maliciously conspired to defraud McDowell of money and other property. The suit is a sequel of a recent hearing before Judge Charles P. Orr, U.S. District Court, when government attorneys and counsel for McDowell argued whether some papers, alleged to have been stolen from McDowell's office, could be presented before the Federal grand jury. After a two-day session the court ordered the papers in dispute impounded until further orders.
